Kevin I will miss you and will always think of you when I hear Talladega Nights. You used to sing that every time it came on. I will continue talking to you and I hope once in a while you give me good advice :) :)

To my children...I know this is a tough time for you. It will hurt for a long time but know that you are not alone. I am always here for you. The whole family is here for you. Your father loved you very much. He's watching over you now, from Heaven. When you glance up at the stars, know that he is there, smiling down on you and loving you to eternity. Do you know why I love butterflies so much? Someone once told me when a butterfly visits you, it's a lost loved one stopping to say hi. Next time you see that butterfly, know that your Dad is there to let you know that he's feeling better now. To Kevin's family: Dad, I've always had great respect and love you. I am praying for the entire family. May you make it through this tough time, together. Even though Kevin and I are no longer together, he will always hold a place in my heart as my first love and the Father of our beautiful children. I wish you all, quick healing, eternal love, and peace. May God be with you during this heartbreaking time. RIP Kevin. I'm so sorry that you won't be here to see the boys grow up, get married, have children, and become the respectable men that I know they will be. I know in my heart that you'll be watching over them. We will always remember the good times. I promise, I'll make sure of it.
