I met Marty in the 70s as a young man. He was always an upstanding person, sometimes a bit quiet and reserved, but always taking in the events going on around him. He will be missed.

When I first moved next-door to them in Norvell. I was there late one night cleaning my house by myself and all of a sudden an explosion came from the basement it was my furnace. I ran to their house next-door, and Marty went and checked my house to make sure nothing was on fire. They were the best neighbors And friends That anyone could ask for. You will surely be missed by many my condolence.
